The agency proposal follows:

Summary

The Election Law Enforcement Commission (hereafter, the Commission) proposes to adopt a new rule concerning reporting and record keeping violations, and to amend its rule concerning political communications.

The proposed new rule at N.J.A.C. 19:25-17.2 would establish the principle that each reporting transaction improperly reported, omitted, or filed late, constitutes a separate violation of the act. For example, a report filed late that contained five separate reporting transactions would be treated as five separate violations. Under current practice, the late filing of a report is deemed as a single violation regardless of the number of reporting transactions it contains. For the purpose of the proposed rule, a reporting transaction is the receipt of a contribution, the making of an expenditure, or the occurrence of any other event subject to reporting requirements. Similarly, each record keeping transaction that is not made or retained as required constitutes a separate violation.

The Commission also proposes to amend N.J.A.C. 19:25-11.10, concerning communications that may be deemed as being political and therefore subject to campaign reporting. An expenditure (including an expenditure for a communication) made by a candidate, a political committee, or out of funds deposited in a campaign account is subject to reporting under the act because all campaign account transactions must be reported. However, expenditures not made from a campaign account are not generally subject to reporting unless they are spent to aid or promote a candidate. The proposed amendment would clarify the conditions under which an expenditure for a communication by a person or an entity other than a candidate becomes subject to reporting requirements.

Under the proposed text of N.J.A.C. 19:25-11.10(a), the term "political communication" is defined as a communication that contains an explicit appeal for the election or defeat of a candidate, and which is circulated to an audience of persons substantially comprised of persons eligible to vote for the candidate on whose behalf the appeal is directed. Therefore, if a person or entity expends funds to pay for flyers, or media broadcasts, which specifically advocate the election of a candidate in an upcoming election, and the flyers or broadcasts are circulated to an audience substantially comprised of voters within that candidate's geographic election district, the expenditure becomes subject to the reporting requirements of the act. If the communication contains no specific words of election advocacy, such as "vote for (name of a candidate)," or similar language, the communication generally is not subject to reporting unless made under circumstances set forth in subsection (b).

The proposed amendment is intended to comport with the election advocacy standard established by the United States Supreme Court to protect undue infringement of free speech; see Buckley v. Valeo, 424 U.S. 1 (1976), and Federal Election Commission v. Massachusetts Citizens for Life, 479 U.S. 238 (1986).

The existing text of subsection (a) provides that a political communication is one "... circulated to 10 or more persons." That standard does not appear in the act, does not provide any requirement that the persons receiving the communication be voters, and does not take into consideration the total number of persons eligible to vote for the office the candidate is seeking. The Commission believes the proposed standard of "... an audience substantially comprised of persons eligible to vote for the candidate on whose behalf the appeal is directed ..." more appropriately correlates the number of communication recipients with the...
The total number of persons eligible to vote for the office the candidate is seeking to secure under the communication would be deemed as political. Therefore, a letter circulated to more than a few persons, that is a measurable percentage of the persons eligible to vote for a candidate, would be deemed to constitute a reportable political communication.

The existing text of subsection (a) which provides for "an unambiguous reference to an upcoming election" appears to be too broad to meet the election. Typically, a communication in the form of an "electoral letter," for which they are to be considered for purposes of this Act. The proposed text of subsection (a) includes "broadcast matter" among the enumerated categories of which might become subject to the reporting and record keeping requirements of the Act. The inclusion of "broadcast matter" in the proposed language is intended to clarify that election advocacy communications made via electronic media are addressed to political communications.

N.J.A.C. 19:25-11.10(b) concerns communications that do not contain explicit election advocacy language, but nevertheless will be deemed to be reportable political communications because of the circumstances surrounding their circulation. Typically, such communications are circulated to constituents of an incumbent officeholder shortly before the election date and are paid for with public funds. An example is a newsletter publication circulated by a governmental entity shortly before an election which contains a letter of support addressed to an incumbent officeholder seeking reelection; see In re Daniels, 159 N.J. Super. 193 (App. Div. 1978), and ELEC v. Brown, 206 N.J. Super. 196, (App. Div. 1985). In those options, the incumbent-officeholder candidate was required to report as an "in-kind" contribution the fair market value of the circulated newsletter even though the text did not contain explicit election advocacy language.

The proposed amendment expands the time period during which such communications on behalf of a non-gubernatorial candidate may be deemed political, the change being from 60 days before the date of an election to 90 days before the date of an election (see N.J.A.C. 19:25-11.10(b)). There is no proposed change in the time period pertaining to a gubernatorial candidate, and the time period therefore remains from January 1st of the year in which a gubernatorial election is held to the date of the primary election for a primary election gubernatorial candidate, and from the day following the date of the primary to the date of the general election for a general election gubernatorial candidate.

The "10 or more persons" standard in subsection (b) is proposed to be replaced by the "audience substantially comprised" of voters standard (see proposed N.J.A.C. 19:25-11.10(b)). Finally, a new requirement has been added that the candidate cooperated, consented, consulted or otherwise participated in the production and distribution of the communication (see proposed N.J.A.C. 19:25-11.10(b)). In the absence of some candidate participation in the communication, the candidate cannot be held responsible for reporting of a communication expenditure made independently of the candidate.

The reporting requirements generated by communications expenditures are set forth in N.J.A.C. 19:25-11.11, and no amendments to that section are contemplated.

Social Impact

The proposed new rule concerning violations, N.J.A.C. 19:25-17.2, will affect a candidate, filing entity, treasurer or other person responsible for reporting or record keeping requirements, who violates the Act or rules.

In particular, larger filing entities and their treasurers will be affected because the proposed rule will enhance the Commission's ability to impose penalties on a report that contains a violation, and it is the larger entities that file more transactions to report or record. The Commission has observed a dramatic increase in contribution and expenditure activity in recent years. For example, a single campaign report by a political committee in the 1989 general election reported more than $5.6 million in receipts, and a single political party committee quarterly report in that year reported over $2 million in receipts. The existing practice of treating all reporting violations contained in a single report as a single violation may inadvertently encourage a substantial filing entity to risk incurring a single penalty, which cannot exceed $1,000 for a first offense, rather than incur costs for accurate reporting and record keeping services that may exceed the penalty maximum. Under the proposed new rule, each reporting transaction (for example, receipt of a contribution) filed违法行为, the person or entity would constitute a violation. The Commission believes that historically civil penalties have proven to be more effective in promoting compliance than has imposition of criminal penalties by authorities outside of the Commission's jurisdiction. Therefore, to ensure that civil penalties remain a meaningful deterrent and are a true reflection of the number of violations, this new rule is being proposed.

Economic Impact

The Commission is unaware of any significant economic impact of the proposed new rule on violations, except for the intended result that the Commission's ability to impose civil penalties for violations of the Act be enhanced. Candidates and filing entities with numerous and more complex transactions may choose to invest more funds for accurate and comprehensive compliance.

The Commission does not perceive any significant economic impact from the proposed N.J.A.C. 19:25-11.10, other than possibly relating issue-oriented organizations not conducting election advocacy activity from incurring reporting and record keeping expenses. Since all candidates must file campaign reports under the Act, extending the circumstances under which a candidate has to report receipts of an in-kind contribution that is, the fair market value of the production and circulation of the publicity does not raise any significant compliance cost.

Regulatory Flexibility Statement

The proposed new rule and the repeal and new rule do not impose any record keeping, reporting, or other compliance requirements on small businesses, as that term is defined under the Regulatory Flexibility Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-14 et seq. The proposed new rule and the repeal and new rule affect candidates, treasurers, and other entities or persons with filing responsibilities under the Act.

Full text of the proposal follows (additions indicated in boldface thus; deletions indicated in brackets [thus]):

19:25-11.10 Political communication

(a) A communication circulated to 10 or more persons that contains an appeal for votes for a candidate in an upcoming election, solicits campaign contributions or otherwise makes an unambiguous reference to an upcoming election shall be deemed to be a political communication and any costs associated with production or circulation shall be subject to campaign reporting.

(b) The term "political communication" means any written statement, pamphlet, advertisement or other printed or broadcast matter containing an explicit appeal for the election or defeat of a candidate which is circulated or broadcast to an audience substantially comprised of persons eligible to vote for the candidate on whose behalf the appeal is directed. Words such as "Vote against (name of opposing candidate)," "Elect (name of candidate)," "Support (name of candidate)," "Defeat (name of opposing candidate)," "Refer (name of opposing candidate)," or participate other similar explicit political directives constitute examples of appeals for the election or defeat of a candidate.

(c) A communication that does not contain any of the elements described in (a) above shall nevertheless be deemed political and subject to campaign reporting if all of the following criteria are applicable to the communication:
1. The communication is circulated to 10 or more persons and contains a statement or reference concerning the governmental or political objectives or achievements of a candidate in an upcoming election;
2. The communication is circulated to an audience that is comprised substantially of persons eligible to vote for the public office being elected in the upcoming election; and 3. The communication is circulated fewer than 60 days before the date of any election in which the candidate referred to is seeking an elected office, except that in the case of a candidate for nomination for the office of Governor in a primary election, the period of time that a communication may be deemed political shall be on or after January 1st in a year in which a primary election for Governor is being conducted, and in the case of a candidate for election to the office of Governor in a general election, the period of time that a communication may be deemed political shall begin on the day following the date of the gubernatorial primary election.
(b) A written statement, pamphlet, advertisement or other printed or broadcast matter that does not contain an explicit appeal pursuant to (a) above for the election or defeat of a candidate shall be deemed to be a political communication if it meets the following conditions:
1. The communication is circulated or broadcast within 90 days of the date of any election in which the candidate on whose behalf the communication is made is seeking elected office; except that in the case of a candidate for nomination for the office of Governor in a primary election, the period of time that a communication shall be deemed political shall be on or after January 1st in a year in which a primary election for Governor is being conducted, and in the case of a candidate for election to the office of Governor in a general election, the period of time that a communication shall be deemed political shall begin on the day following the date of the gubernatorial primary election;
2. The communication is circulated or broadcast to an audience substantially comprised of persons eligible to vote for the candidate on whose behalf the communication was made;
3. The communication contains a statement or reference concerning the governmental or political objectives or achievements of the candidate; and
4. The production, circulation or broadcast of the communication, or any cost associated with the production, circulation or broadcast of the communication, has been made in whole or in part with the cooperation of, prior consent of, or in consultation with, or at the request or suggestion of the candidate.
(c) Nothing contained in (b) above shall be construed to require reporting of a communication by an incumbent officer seeking reelection [which communication] if it is circulated or broadcast to constituents for the sole and limited purpose of communicating governmental events requiring those constituents to make applications or take other actions within a specified time period, or if it is circulated or broadcast to constituents for the sole and limited purpose of communicating facts relevant to a bona fide public emergency.
