PRESS ADVISORY

Following the pattern set in the gubernatorial and Assembly contests and among the big six committees, financial activity by the 42 county political party committees has slipped significantly since 2005, the last time there was an election for governor and Assembly.

Jeff Brindle, Executive Director of the New Jersey Election Law Enforcement Commission, said today that "fundraising by the county committees has decreased by 17 percent and expenditures by 18 percent."

"The 42 county party committees reported receipts of $7.1 million and expenditures of $6.2 million in 2009," added Brindle. "In 2005 receipts totaled $8.6 million and expenditures $7.6 million."

Brindle said "once again the significant reduction in county party financial activity can be attributed to the economy, and, importantly, to the impact of the Pay-to-Play laws at the local level."

Brindle said that he sees another trend developing at the local level that may also be affecting fundraising by county parties.

"More and more we are witnessing political action committees (PACs) being formed, in many instances by party members," Brindle asserted. "This activity may be drawing funds away from the county organizations as well."

As of the October 15th quarterly reporting period, the Democratic county party committees have outdistanced their Republican counterparts by substantial amounts.

The Democratic county organizations reported raising $5.6 million and spending $4.8 million. Republicans, on the other hand, reported receipts of $1.6 million and expenditures of $1.4 million.

Both parties, however, reported financial activity that was less than in 2005. Democratic county organizations showed a decrease of 16 percent in fundraising and a 14 percent decline in spending. Republican county organizations raised 16 percent less and have spent 26 percent less than four years ago.

According to Brindle, nine of the ten top county party organizations in terms of financial activity are Democratic organizations.

Camden County Democratic Committee, the Bergen County Democratic Organization, the Middlesex County Democratic Organization, the Essex County Democratic Committee, and the Burlington County Republican Committee were the top five in terms of fundraising and expenditure activity.

Following the top five are the Gloucester County Democratic Executive Committee, the Passaic County Democratic Committee, the Union County Democratic Committee, the Burlington County Democratic Committee, and the Monmouth County Democrats.

Attached are two charts of financial activity reported as of October 15th by all 42 county party organizations.

The reports are available on-line today at 10:00 a.m. on ELEC's website at www.elec.state.nj.us.
